With reference to section 3.4

3.4 The Retention Limitation Obligation requires an organisation to cease to retain its documents containing personal data, or remove the means by which the personal data can be associated with particular individuals, as soon as it is reasonable to assume that the purpose for which that personal data was collected is no longer being served by retention of the personal data, and the retention is no longer necessary for legal or business purposes. The PDPA does not prescribe a specific retention period for personal data.

Comment

The PDPA should not prescribe a specific retention period for personal data. PDPA should leave the agency to decide as the agency may continue to engage the members even after the members do not renew their membership.
